The DIMMER VIEW

Cranston and the 'Beer-ocracy'

As our solons mature, they sometimes become comics.

Veteran U.S. Senator Alan Cranston, for example, fired off a bit of wit recently when he saw discrimination in the law that permits winemakers to produce the "touch of the grape" and beer quaffers who are connoisseurs of homemade beer.

His posture isn't far from a Henny Youngman approach. Look at this:

"Ever hear of the Yeast Bay Brewers? Or the Maltose Falcons? Or the San Andreas Malts?

A cut below a low-level Bob Hope.

He goes on to explain that home-brewers are being discriminated against.

They are some of the Home Bred Beer Clubs which represent hundreds of people in California who brew their own brew for personal consumption, not for sale.

These people have run into trouble with the U.S. Treasury because, in the opinion of the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms, they are operating illegally.

The ATF's reasoning: The home brewing of beer is not specifically authorized by federal statute. Therefore, it is illegal.

"Ridiculous!" says Senator Cranston, "Beer-ocracy at its worst!"

He said it reminds him of the basic rule of a dictatorship: "If something is not permitted, it is forbidden."

Cranston has introduced legislation that would put beer brewers on the same legal footing as people who make their own wine. And there are hundreds of them, too.

The ATF permits a "head of household" to make up to 200 gallons of wine a year for family consumption, provided he (or she) registers with the Bureau.

A new bill, H.R. 2028, introduced by Congressman Barber Conable (R., N.Y.) with the ATF's support would eliminate both the registration and "head of household" limitations for winemakers.

Cranston's bill would do the same for beer brewers, plus legitimizing the home production of 200 gallons of beer a year—about a six-pack a day—same as wine.

As amusing as his approach to home-brewing is, it is a dead serious matter among those who prefer to produce their own beer by their favorite formula.

But Cranston, a former foreign correspondent and a loyal Democrat, lets a little of the Republicanism break through when he concerns himself with divesting the nation of some unnecessary federal bureaus.

After a year-long campaign, the subcommittee on State, Commerce and Judiciary voted last month to back Cranston's battle do away with the long-lived federal Renegotiation Board.

The agency now has 6 months of life to complete its "business" after which it pays its 179 employees their severance, and calls it a day.

The Renegotiation Board's authorization expired September 30, 1976 but in continued to get funded—at the rate of $5.5 million annually—in hopes that it would clean up a case backlog that goes back to 1972. Instead, its chairman, Gordon Chase, proposed adding 500 more employees to his staff.

The board was created primarily to review defense contracts for excessive profits. It went out of business after WWII but was revived during the Korean War.

Cranston began his campaign to terminate the board in June, because "it costs the taxpayers more money than it saves" and "is a needless form of government interference with business."

He said record keeping and other administrative burdens imposed by the board costs business at least $100 million a year.

The board is fully justified in times of emergency when the government must let contracts in a hurry and can't afford time for customary procurement practices, such as competitive bidding, to avoid excessive profit making, he said.

"But in normal times the board is an anachronism that buries private industry with red tape and paper work, and increases the government cost of procuring essential goods and services," he observed.

Many Americans will toast that determination with a quaff of legal home brew.

Two Men Arrested On Robbery Charge

Two male suspects in an armed robbery of the Hi Lo Liquor Store, 3757 Imperial ave., were placed under arrest by Sheriff's deputies Monday night close to their residence.

The robbery occurred around 7 p.m. Monday when two men entered the store with what was believed to be a gun and told the owner and three patrons that "this is a holdup."

The men grabbed a paper bag and stuffed it with an undisclosed amount of money from the cash register and left by car.

Sheriff's deputies, who could identify the car and the suspects' address, watched their residence. They followed the suspects when they fled from the building after having been ordered over the officers' PA system to exit.

The suspects were taken to County Jail. A handgun, reportedly used by the suspects, was confiscated after a search of the suspects' residence.

Jamul Woman Raped

A 54-year-old woman was raped in her Jamul home on Sunday, shortly after midnight.

The victim, who was caught by her assailant while sleeping in her bedroom, stated that she failed to lock the door.

After sheriff's deputies arrived at the scene, the victim was taken to Grossmont Hospital and released after a physical examination.

Deputies searched the area for the suspect, including the suspect's residence but were unable to locate him.

Suspect Arrested In Pit Stop Heist

A male suspect in an armed robbery at the Pit Stop gas station, 7081 Broadway, Lemon Grove, was taken into custody Monday by Sheriff's deputies.

The robbery had occurred earlier that morning when a man approached clerk Elizabeth E. Eramdjian in the gas station's office with a handgun and told her to hang up the phone on which she was talking.

He then jumped over the counter to the cash register and took out an estimated $40 in bills and coins. He fled the scene after a woman banged on the office window and motioned him to come out.

The suspects, who disappeared by car, were later stopped by deputies at the intersection of Glencoe and Helm, San Diego, where the male suspect was identified by the clerk and taken into custody.

The robbery had been witnessed by the station's manager and a passerby.

TRAINING THE TROOPS — Bruce Baker, left, manager of the Lemon Grove branch of California First Bank and John Nersesian, manager of San Diego Trust and Savings in Lemon Grove, look over fundraising materials with Mary Hellman, representing the $6.3 million fund drive to rebuild the Old Globe Theatre and to build a 750-seat Festival Theatre nearby Baker and Nersesian were among local financial institution managers to solicit area business door-to-door today.

Local Bankers Join In Old Globe Fundraising

If you're a business owner in Lemon Grove, Spring Valley or La Mesa, chances are there'll be a bank executive on your doorstep sometime today—asking for a handout.

But he won't be looking to line his own pocket, or even just to attract your banking business.

He'll be asking you to help out in the $6.3 million fundraising drive to rebuild Balboa Park's Old Globe Theatre, destroyed by fire in March, and to build a new 750-seat Festival Theatre beside it.

Approximately 300 businesses throughout the East County are being asked for contributions this week, with Lemon Grove, Spring Valley and La Mesa being the target areas today.

Branch managers of local financial institutions who'll be among the pavement-pounders today include Bruce Baker of the Lemon Grove branch of California First Bank, John Nersesian of the Lemon Grove San Diego Trust and Savings branch and Bob Guest of Crocker Bank, Lemon Grove.

Business persons will be asked to make pledges payable over a five-year period. Today's fund drive will be headquartered in the Grossmont Center branch of San Diego Federal Savings and Loan.

A campaign scheduled for Tuesday was to have solicited businesses in El Cajon, Santee and Lakeside. The door-to-door campaigns are only one facet of an intensive fund-raising effort planned during the summer months, said Mary Hellman, campaign associate.

"Donations are being requested from individuals, firms and foundations throughout the state and nation," Ms. Hellman said.

When rebuilt on its old site, the 450-seat Old Globe Theatre will become part of the planned Globe Centre For The Performing Arts, to include the existing 200-seat Cassius Carter Centre Stage and a new 750-seat Festival Theatre.

The Festival Theatre is planned to remedy what fund-raisers call a "surprising lack" of medium-sized theater facilities in San Diego.

"Although the area is blessed with a variety of small theatres and a number of grand 2,0000- to 3,000-seat houses," fundraising promotional materials state, "there is a surprising lack of medium-sized facilities.

"Ranging in capacity from 500 to 800 seats, these still intimate theatres are ideal for a variety of performing arts—intricate chamber music, an emerging dance troup, a limited-run road show, an experimental opera and, of course, traditional and experimental theatre."

Buckner Heads Plan Commish

Lemon Grove's 5-member Planning Commission elected Warren Buckner as its president Monday night at a workshop meeting at City Hall.

John Stenbeck became vice president and Joseph Hobbs, secretary.

Jim Palmer, City Planning Director, said the commission would have its first public meeting July 24 at the Community Center on School lane at 7:30 p.m.

At the Monday evening meeting City Attorney Donald McLean discussed conduct requirements of commissioners and legal aspects of decisions.

Other members of the commission are Lois Heiserman and Ben Ela.

LG Schools Restore $562,000 In Proposed 1978-79 Expenses

By Bob Melton

Lemon Grove School District trustees have restored $562,116 in expenditures, previously deleted, to their proposed budget for 1978-79, the bulk of them in classified (non-teaching) job positions.

The restorations, made Tuesday night, bring total expenditures for the proposed budget to about $5.2 million, plus a rather small "appropriation for contingencies" of $260,000, for a total budget figure of $5.473 million.

But the restorations, funded by emergency state aid to counter the effects of Proposition 13, so far don't include bus service for the coming school year, already cancelled except for handicapped students. (Summer school for this summer, previously cancelled, wasn't restored either.)

Bus service for younger students, kindergarten through 3rd grade, was among $120,000 in additional proposed restorations trustees postponed at the request of Dr. Robert Sutton, district superintendent.

Sutton said the $120,000-worth, including two teaching positions and purchase of a small bus for handicapped students, will probably be resubmitted in August, when trustees must adopt their Publication Budget for 1978-79.

The delay, Sutton said, is so he can "develop an appropriation for contingencies at a figure closer to the recommended 5 per cent" of the total budget.

But carrying a contingency fund smaller than educators normally prefer may not be a problem, Sutton said, "since in many ways school finances have gotten a lot clearer, a lot more secure with Proposition 13."

"We used to have so many things fluctuating in income," Sutton told The Lemon Grove Review, "mainly our assessments for local property taxes. It would often be far into the school year before we had any idea what our local tax income might be.

"As the state pays more and more for education, based on a formula, we have the added security of having more of our income from a single, reliable source. And it looks like the state will be continuing to make more of a commitment to funding education in years to come.

"Also, the state ruled out salary increases this year under the emergency aid bill, so we don't have to worry about paying for those."

Lemon Grove district officials had estimated a loss of $1.4 milliion for 1978-79 in local property tax revenue frim Proposition 13, and have predicted about $1.075 million in emergency state support in the new budget.

Trustees will continue to discuss the budget, which must be adopted in final form Sept. 5, in a special budget review meeting scheduled for 1:30 p.m. next Friday.

In other business Tuesday night, Chuck Pennell, who was elected to the board in the June 6 election, was sworn in as a trustee, bringing the board to its full complement of five members. The position Pennell will hold until it comes open next March was previously held by Jim Dorman, mayor of Lemon Grove.

Trustees also awarded their bid for milk service for the coming year to Hollondia Dairy, Inc. of San Marcos, the first time in many years it hasn't gone to Lemon Grove's Miller Dairy.

Hollondia's bid was lowest of three, Sutton said, while Miller's was highest, although Miller offered a series of discounts if large deliveries were taken.

"The discounts would be good for a much larger district than ours," Sutton said, "with its own storage and distribution system for milk, which we don't have.

"Based on daily delivery, the district will save about $7,000 over last year switching from Miller to Hollondia."

Police Can Keep Home Addresses Secret Now

Police who fear harassment of themselves or their families through public knowledge of their home addresses can now keep such information confidential.

Legislation effective July 1 (SB36, Lou Cusanovich, R-Woodland Hills) enables any sheriff, deputy sheriff, police officer, member of California Highway Patrol, or State Police, regularly employed and paid as such, to request confidentiality of address information on any record of the Department of Motor Vehicles.

Once a peace officer's records have been made confidential, any person requesting information will receive driver license or vehicle-related information, but the address of the peace officer's employing agency will appear instead of the home address.

Present law opens vehicle registration records and driver license records- to public inspection, with the exception of certain medical and physical information.

Cranston Bill Tries To Save Federal Matching Fund Services

U.S. Senator Alan Cranston (D., Calif.) has introduced legislation to save for Californians some of the federal matching-fund services they've already paid for but may lose as a result of the passage of Proposition 13.

Cranston estimated that of the $21 billion Californians paid in individual federal income taxes last April 15, around $5 billion was to go for programs in California which are supported by Washington jointly with the state and local governments.

Return of that $5 billion to California is conditioned upon varying amounts of local spending and maintenance of local tax effort. But because of the cutback in property taxes, state and local governments in California may not continue to have the money to spend that the federal government requires be spent, and so may lose their paid-for share of federal programs.

Cranston said Washington should be required to count as local matching funds the increase in federal taxes Californians will pay next year because they will have less property tax to deduct. That increase is variously estimated at from $1 to $2.5 billion.

"My bill would not give Californians any extra dollars from the Treasury," Cranston said. "It is not a bail-out; California doesn't need—and doesn't want—bailing out.

"It would simply make sure that Californians get the federal services they've already paid for but which they risk losing because they voted to reform the state's real property tax system.

"There is an assumption among some people in Washington that federal programs are a form of largesse from the benevolent Big-Brother. That's not so. We in California paid for those programs and in fairness we are entitled to retain the maximum benefits possible."

Cranston's bill, S. 3264, would apply to any state that similarly imposes a constitutional limitation in property taxes.

House on Fire, $30,000 Damage

An estimated damage of $30,000 to an unoccupied house at 8719 Ildica st., Spring Valley, was caused by a fire Friday morning. There were no injuries.

The fire, triggered by an electrical short-circuit, was reported at 3:50 a.m., according to Spring Valley Fire Department Marshal Orville Williamson.

The property, which had been vacant for three weeks and was being prepared for rent by a prospective tenant, is owned by Robert Makin at 8709 Ildica st.

Fire inspectors found that the house was overfused and that a wire in a lamp fixture was spliced. According to Williamson, the prospective tenant had also received several shocks during his preparatory work.

The Spring Valley Fire Department sent two engine companies, a utility rig and paramedics to the scene.

Welfare, Bureaus Concern Taxpayers

By Roger Hedgecock
County Supervisor
3rd District

This is the dilemma of Proposition 13 — what one citizen considers "waste" another citizen considers "necessary service"! The problem of what to cut and what to keep in county government is now before the Board of Supervisors.

Recent public opinion polls indicate that taxpayers are particularly concerned about the costs of Welfare and increasingly complex governmental bureaucracies. I believe that effective implementation of Proposition 13 requires that the county begin first in these two areas to "cut the fat."

At the present time, state and federal law requires the county to contribute local property tax money as "matching funds" to support Welfare and Medi-Cal programs. In the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) program, for instance, 20% of the total cost of this program is borne by the local property taxpayer therough federal legislative fiat.

Kill Cost of Living

Adding insult to injury, a provision in state law would require a 7.65% increase this year to payments to AFDC recipients. The total cost of this increase alone for county government is $5 million of which $1 million would be local property tax money. At my request, the Board of Supervisors has unanimously adopted a position urging the state legislature to delete this cost-of-living increase. I do not believe we can ask our county employees to face the possibilities of layoffs, wage freezes, pension benefit reductions for new employees, and increasing work loads (all of which are under discussion) while at the same time providing an increase in payments to Welfare families.

The second area in local government which I feel needs immediate attention and budget reduction is the incredible layers of administration. It will be my direction in the budget sessions next month to cut as much administration as possible while preserving as many service employees as possible.

Example of 'Fat'

You don't have to go very far in our county bureaucracy before you come face to face with what I consider to be a prime example of "fat" in local government. I'm referring to the county's agency system of administration. The agency concept has been in existence in one form or another since 1970 billed as a cure-all for inadequate administration and accountability.

The agency system is a conglomeration of top-level administrators who act as advisors to the Board of Supervisors and has provided a buffer between the departments who actually do the work and the Board of Supervisors who would like to make sure that work is done in a proper fashion at the least cost. Far from providing a better accountability, the agency system of government has lengthened the time required to decide what to do and how to carry it out and just created another level of bureaucracy burdening the system.

During the budget sessions I will be recommending elimination of the agency structure. This elimination will reduce administration red tape and paper shuffling and save the taxpayers approximately $3.5 million without any loss of direct public services presently being provided by the county.

Proposition 13 has provided a unique opportunity for local governments to become more creative and less self-serving. I accept the voters' challenge to continue providing critical and necessary services with a corresponding reduction in the red tape normally associated with government.

Dr. William Stephenson, 33, has taken over as new pastor at the Lemon Grove United Methodist Church, 3205 Washington st., succeeding Dr. Dudley V. Johnson, Jr., who has been transferred to San Marcos.

HomeFed Hikes Interest Rate on Keoghs, IRAs

Home Federal Savings and Loan Association of San Diego has increased the interest rate on Keogh and IRA retirement accounts, according to William A. Gordon, Home Federal Investment Planning Manager.

Effective July 1, Home Federal's Keogh and Individual Retirement Account (IRA) holders whose certificates have an original term of 3 years or longer will earn 8% interest. The annual yield will be 8.33% because Home Federal compounds interest daily. At this rate, an account would double in 8 years and 8 months.

The higher interest rate will be granted automatically to current Home Federal customers with IRA or Keogh accounts. The original maturity date on each account will not change.

The increased rate is a result of the new high investment rates approved by federal regulatory agencies in May.

Gordon noted that one attractive feature of the retirement accounts is that no minimum balance or deposit is required, as with the other high interest accounts. The government does not collect income taxes on Keogh or IRA accounts until the money is withdrawn.

"We are granting the increase automatically as a convenience," said Gordon. "Our customers don't have to come in or call us to take advantage of these increased savings."

Lipizzans Stallions In S.D. Show July 23

The Royal Lipizzan Stallions will make their annual appearance at the Convention and Performing Arts Center Golden Hall Sunday, July 23 with shows scheduled at 3 and 8 p.m.

The rare white horses are most famous for their precision dressage and spectacular leaps from a stand-still position. These "airs above the ground" performed by the Lipizzans are so difficult that no one horse has ever learned to do them all.

The most difficult of the great leaps is considered to be the Capriole, a soaring jump from which the horse lashes out with both hind feet. At the Spanish Court Riding School in Vienna, only the especially gifted stallions go on to master these feats. The process of learning in the school is reciprocal: the old horses teach the young riders and the veteran instructors school the young stallions.

Lipizzans begin training when they are about 4 years old and some are still star performers at 25. Born dark, the young horses acquire the milk-white coat between 3 and 7 years.

The horses were originally bred in Spain and represented a fusing of Andalusian, Arab and Vilanos bloodlines. Their name comes from a breeding farm in Lipizza near Trieste, set up in the 16th century by Archduke Charles of Austria.

In 1942 the Lipizzan stud was shipped for safekeeping to Czecholsolvakia where, without the mares, the breed faced extinction. The dramatic story of the stud's rescue and return to Austria by the forces of General Patton was told in the Disney film, "The Miracle of the White Stallions."

In addition to the Lipizzans, such breeds as Andalusians, American Saddlebreds and Appoloosas will perform in San Diego.

Tickets are available at the Center box office and all Select-a-Seat ticket outlets. Chilwhen under 12 and seniors over 65 are admitted at half-price.

Catholic Diocese Gets New School Superintendent

Rev. Dennis P. Clark, a Riverside native, returns to Southern California as the new Superintendent of Schools for the four-county Catholic Diocese of San Diego (counties of Imperial, Riverside, San Bernardino and San Diego).

Ordained a priest of the Santa Rosa Diocese, Fr. Clark comes to the San Diego offices of the Diocese as a specialist in education. A graduate of the University of San Diego, he received his Masters Degree from the University of San Francisco in 1965. He completed his priestly studies at the Catholic University in Washington, D.C., in 1966.

Fr. Clark received his Doctorate from Catholic University. Upon completion of his degree requirements, he served on the faculty of St. Patrick's Seminary, Menlo Park, as Administrator of Resurrection Parish in Santa Rosa, and as Superintendent of Schools and Director of Vocations for the Santa Rosa, and as Superintendent of Schools and Director of Vocations for the Santa Rosa Diocese. He was recently appointed by the California Board of Education to a four-year term on the California Equal Educational Opportunities Commission.

Upon announcing Fr. Clark's appointment. Bishop Leo T. Maher said, "The quality of education offered by the Catholic School System here at the diocese of San Diego can only be enhanced with Fr. Clark's arrival. He is an outstanding priest and a professional educator."

Concurrent with Fr. Clark's appointment was the appointment of Fr. John D. Cuddigan, S.J., as Diocesan Director of Deferred Giving with special emphasis on funding for schools, campus ministry and youth programs. Fr. Cuddigan served as interim Superintendent of Schools for the diocese during the last school year.

In his comments during the announcement, Bishop Maher expressed his gratitude for the excellent accomplishments of Fr. Cuddigan. The Bishop said "We are privileged to have Fr. Cuddigan continue with the apostolic work of the diocese."

Fr. Cuddigan is a native of Minneapolis, Minnesota. He holds a Doctorate in European History from the University of Minnesota. He came to San Diego after serving as Academic Dean at Wheeling College, Wheeling, West Virginia.

'Something Old, Something New..'

The institution of marriage is still well and alive in spite of minor decreases in weddings over the last years, according to Father Michael Higgins.

Father Higgins, officialis of the Tribunal of the San Diego Diocese serving the counties of San Diego, San Bernardino, Riverside and Imperial, said Catholics do not shy away from church weddings because of stricter guidelines, but are more serious about getting married.

There were 3,794 Catholic weddings in the diocese in 1977, 241 less than in 1976.

"More people are going into marriage with the idea of making it work instead of the idea, 'if it doesn't work we'll get a divorce'," Father Higgins said. He added that more people are getting married at an older age.

Engaged couples are required to wait for three months before getting married.

During this period they are counseled by priests who decide whether they are "ready to handle the rights and responsibilities of Christian marriage."

There's An Answer

by Norman Vincent Peale and Ruth Stafford Peale

Can't say it in words

Q. My husband has a girl friend he says he loves only as a friend. She is 18 and he's 41. We've been married 21 happy years. We're together all the time, even on our jobs. But he says I don't love him. I've never been the type of person to say in words that I loved him, but thought by my action he could see I loved him. I've always been true and faithful to him. He says he hasn't been happy with me for years and that she gives him love and attention which I have never done. But all they do is talk. He doesn't run around on me. Could just a friend mean this much to a married man? If I'm at fault please advise, and I'll try to accept.

A. You are at fault in not practicing one of the basic elements in the love relationship.

William James, the great psychologist, said: "The greatest of all desires is the desire to be appreciated."

It is amazing that a mature woman would not be as smart as an 18-year-old girl and give her husband constant evidence of her love, not only by action, but by expression. You had just better learn to say, "I love you."

Ex-convict wants a chance

Q. I am presently in prison and have 9 months left. I am here for taking a thousand dollars from a bank deposit where I worked as an auto salesman. Since then I have come to know God and realize that what I did was wrong. When I am released I would like to sell real estate in my hometown. I owe it to myself and my parents to make something of myself. Do you think someone will be willing to take a chance on an ex-convict?

A. When you come out of prison, simply believe that God will guide and help you. And He will, that's for sure.

If you conduct yourself honestly and sincerely try to do your best, you can be sure that you will find someone who will be willing to employ you and take a chance on your honesty. But never fail such a believing person. Your way back may be hard, but you can make it.

We have a booklet, "You've Got a Future," which has helped others with problems such as yours, and a copy of it is on its way to you. Anyone wishing a free copy may write to us in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Stays at boy's house

Q. Our problem is our daughter. She goes to this boy's house and stays for hours. She doesn't even tell us she is going, and the boy's parents are never home. They both are 17, and we don't know what they do there for so long. She doesn't have any respect for us. We have talked to her but it does no good. We love her but are beginning not to care for her. Thank you for your help.

A. The matter for concern is not your daughter's seeming lack of respect for you. The important consideration is that this girl should not fall into wrong doing.

You will never meet your responsibilities creatively by beginning not to care for her. It is most important that you continue to love her, believe in her, have respect for her and show her that you trust her. As you do so she will ultimately respond in kind.

If there is something you would like to ask Dr. and Mrs. Peale to discuss in this column, write to them in care of Box 500, Pawling, NY 12564.

Letters to the Editor

Not All That Bad

In a recent letter Gerald Foye complained that the new city had allowed streets to deteriorate and debris to clog the drainage systems while a business license fee was added to the tax cost.

Here is Mayor Dorman's response:

Gerald F. Foye
2645 Drew Lane
Lemon Grove, Calif. 92045
Dear Mr. Foye:

I appreciate your concern about services in Lemon Grove. I should point out that the County has continued to provide the same services to Lemon Grove during this transition year that they have provided in the past. One of the items you mentioned has been a particular concern to the City Council (street sweeping).

The County has been responsive to our concerns and has increased the frequency of sweeping the past few months and we have included a more frequent sweeping schedule in our contract for street maintenance beginning July 1.

Responsibility for flood control has been and remains with the Flood Control District over which the City has no direct control. I have referred your complaint to the Department of Sanitation and Flood Control.

It is not the intention of the City to take over the trash collection service or any other service being provided by private enterprise so we will all continue to pay for trash pick up service individually.

With respect to streets deteriorating, the County resurfaced 7.5 miles of streets in Lemon Grove this year in addition to the installation of two traffic signals and the commitment to improvement of two others by adding left-turn lanes. The City budget for next fiscal year includes funds to resurface at least 10 more miles of streets.

Although our streets may appear to be deteriorating "to a greater degree than ever", more of them were resurfaced this past year than any single year in the past, and we plan to continue that level.

The imposition of a rather modest business license tax will help the City finance the improved level of street maintenance I mentioned as well as as improved services in other areas such as Law Enforcement and Recreation. It should please you to know that we expect to be able to improve these services that you and other Lemon Grove residents have been concerned about in spite of the tax revenue limitations imposed by Proposition 13.

I hope this letter sheds some light on the concerns you expressed.

Sincerely,
JAMES V. DORMAN
Mayor

Litter Lives on

Dear Editor:

Californians can be justly proud of the beautiful and scenic state in which they live. However, like many other areas of the country, we do have some environmental problems that continue to mount and must be dealt with. Two good examples are the steady increase in littering and the disposal/utilization of our growing output of solid waste.

With the enactment of the "Litter Control, Recycling, and Resource Recovery Act of 1977" on Jan. 1, California has indeed taken a "giant step" forward in solving these major environmental problems.

Referred to as the "California Environment Act", this comprehensive and progressive new law has the enthusiastic support of the Governor, state legislators, labor, industry and countless environmentally-concerned individuals and groups.

Unfortunately, the citizens of California — for the most part — are still not informed as to its provisions and objectives. Any law, to be effective, must have strong public support.

The Industry Environmental Council has produced two excellent informational pamphlets to acquaint people with this Act. If your readers wish some information on this law and how they can personally contribute to its success they should write: California Environment Act, P.O. Box 60492, Los Angeles, Calif. 90060.

We ask them to join us in making this law successful and thereby ensure that California continues to be a clean, healthy and beautiful state.

Sincerely yours,
John Gallagher
Chairman
Industry Environmental Council

Slaps State Energy

Dear Editor:

The Jarvis Gann bill or Proposition 13 places California in the front rank of states toward restoring government by the people and for the people to our republic, and let us all hope as California goes, so goes the nation.

Let us also hope that our aroused citizenry concerned over uncontrolled spending tax dollars, will take a good look at our state energy commission, a boondoggling organization whose only accomplishments in 3½ years has been spnding vast sums of money in a costly experiment for a proven failure.

Vividly portrayed in California, the hand writing is on the wall, spelling out to those high spending bureaucrats, "It's later than you think," and if you want to navigate our ship of state into safer waters, avoid your present collision course by abolishing the State Energy Commission.

Says Districts Will Answer Vital Needs

Dear Editor:

We decided to vote against both Proposition 13 and Proposition 8, and after listening to some of the panicky and hysterical "debates."

We were appalled by the scare tactics used by some political opponents rushing thoughtlessly to deprive the citizens of fire and police protection. But the people can help themselves by forming a Fire Protection District by way of a tax levy on the property within that district only.

By doing this you will be in control and your "big brother" in Sacramento and your "father" in Washington will be sidetracked as far as controlling you in this instance.

Remember, for every dollar sent to Sacramento and to Washington, we get back only a portion of it, so why not try to solve our own problems with our own funds?

This Week's RECIPE

Sesame Steak Strips

Something new for outdoor barbecues are grilled Sesame Steak Strips. The meat is seasoned in a marinade with a spicy Korean flavor. Any leftover marinade comes to the table to be served as a sauce top the meat.

To go with Sesame Steak Strips, prepare stir-fried Chinese vegetables on the grill. The vegetables are cooked in a skillet or Chinese wok, placed directly over hot briquets in the grill.

Sesame Steak Strips

½ cup soy sauce
1 tablespoon sesame seeds
¼ cup dry white wine
1 medium onion, chopped
½ cup chopped green onion
1 clove garlic, crushed
½ teaspoon ground ginger
3 lbs. beef sirloin, cut into thin strips
2 large green peppers, cut into squares
16 to 20 large mushroom caps
16 cherry tomatoes

For marinade, place soy sauce, sesame seeds, wine, chopped onions, garlic and ginger in jar of blender; blend well. Place meat in a large glass or enamel bowl and pour marinade over. Marinate several hour or overnight, stirring occasionally.

Just before cooking, remove meat from marinade and drain, reserving marinade. Thread meat on skewers, alternating with green pepper pieces, cherry tomatoes and mushroom caps. Brush with cooking oil. Grill to desired doneness, basting with marinade several times during cooking. Leftover marinade may be heated and served as a sauce at the table. Serves 4 to 6.

Stir-Fried Chinese Vegetables

¼ cup cooking oil
1 bunch green onions, cut in one-inch lengths
1 green pepper, diced
4 stalks celery, sliced diagonally into ½-inch slices
½ pound fresh mushrooms, sliced thin
1 16-oz. can bean sprouts, rinsed and drained
1 6-oz. package frozen Chinese pea pods (snow peas)
¼ cup soy sauce
1 tablespoon sugar

Place skillet or wok directly on hot briquets in grill. Add oil. When oil is hot, add onions, green pepper and celery and cook, stirring constantly, until vegetables are softened. Add remaining ingredients and continue to cook and stir until vegetables are tender-crisp. Serve immediately.

County Commission Supports Bills to Benefit Divorcees

San Diego's County Commission on the status of women supports federal legislation providing divorced homemakers an equitable share of their former spouse's retirement pay and survivor's benefits.

The proposed legislation, HR 11354, which is co-sponsored by U. S. Congressman Van Deerlin (D.-San Diego), recognizes the homemaker's contribution to the spouse's ability to earn a wage and receive a pension.

HR 11354 covers only former spouses of military members of the Armed Services. The Commission has asked Congress to amend it to include civil service and private sector retirement pay and survivor's benefits.

In its letter the commission stated that "one of the most severe forms of economic discrimination is the failure of our society to attach an economic value to full-time homemaking and child rearing. That discrimination becomes an economic tragedy for older divorced women with little or no spousal support, a lack of paid work experience and no retirement benefits."

'Sneak Preview' Set By Ballet Folklorico

The Ballet Folklorico of Mexico will appear, with no admission charge, in a "sneak preview" performance beginning at 1 p.m. next Tuesday, July 18, in the courtyard of the Bazaar del Mundo, 2754 Calhoun st. in San Diego.

The ballet's mini-performance will precede its appearances at the Fox Theatre July 18 through 22.

Also appearing at the Bazaar will be Amalia Hernandez, director-choreographer and founder of the ballet.

Food Prices to Stabilize

Despite the recent jump in food prices, agricultural analysts predict retail food prices will stabilize within weeks.

Eric Thor, Jr., agricultural economist for the Bank of America, says the annual food price increase will not exceed 10 per cent.

"The last half of 1978 will moderate the rapid inflation rate increase of the first part of the year," he says. "Improved harvests of fruits and vegetables will begin to push down food prices by the end of June."

California Farm Bureau commodity specialists are predicting ample supplies and moderate prices for dairy and poultry products, lettuce, potatoes, onions, strawberries, citrus, rice, peaches, plums, nectarines and melons. There will be a relatively smaller supply of grapes, pears, almonds, cherries and apricots.

"Food prices are currently high at retail levels because there is not enough food to competitively flatten prices," says Richard Hartmann, Farm Bureau economist. "The miserable weather of the past two years is still affecting farm production. Effects of adverse weather are lowering yields of many crops. The drought, coupled with severely depressed market prices, forced livestock producers to decrease the number of animals in their herds, resulting in the current low level of slaughter.

"We have experienced the worst of the price increases," Hartmann says. "By the end of June the last of the weather-induced problems will be behind us. Though meat prices will continue to move upward, the pace will be far slower than the past several months.

"Department of Agriculture figures show that California cattlemen lost money for 25 consecutive months," he says. "Now they are finally showing a profit."

Bob Johnson, a vegetable grower from Chualar in Monterey County, also cites poor weather conditions as an important factor in the recent food price jump.

Tips Offered on Canning, Freezing Garden Crops

If your home garden crop leaves you with food coming out of your ears, how about freezing or canning some of it for later?

Need some how-to tips? The U.S. Department of AAgriculture has just the thing for you and it's free. For your copy of "Beginner's Guide to Home Canning and Freezing," just send a postcard to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 653F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

Be sure to can only the amount your family will use in one year. Although food held longer is safe to eat, it may lose nutritional value or quality, especially if you store it at temperatures above 50 degrees F.

As a beginner, you'll need to understand something about micro-organisms, such as bacteria, that cause spoilage in food. Botulism, a deadly poison caused by certain bacteria, will grow only in low-acid foods. So, to kill these bacteria, low-acid foods, like asparagus, beans, corn and carrots must be carefully processed, using a steam pressure canner. This canner allows you to destroy harmful bacteria by processing at 240 degrees F.

High-acid foods on the other hand, may be processed in a boiling water bath canner, since few bacteria survive in acids. Apples, berries, and tomatoes are examples of high-acid foods.

Use only tempered glass canning jars that are made to withstand high temperatures and lids that fit the jars you are using. Never use empty peanut butter, coffee, or mayonnaise jars for canning. These jars are not tempered and generally do not fit standard canning lids well enough for proper sealing.

For home freezing, as well as home canning, the key to success is starting with quality food, using containers that will protect and seal food well. and observing cleanliness and speed while processing. A good rule of thumb is two hours from garden to container—and the faster the better.

Most food can be quick frozen; but you can't freeze tomatoes (except stewed tomatoes) or vegetables that lose crispness, such as radishes, celery, cucumbers and salad greens.

Here's what you'll need: standard kitchen utensils, plus a steel, aluminum or enamel kettle or pot to hold at least a gallon of boiling water, and a tight fitting cover. You'll need a mesh basket, a strainer or large squares of cheesecloth to hold vegetables while blanching.

Also get a container for ice water to stop cooking action by quick chilling vegetables, and a colander for draining them.

Don't skimp on freezer containers. Most on the market today are waterproof and easy to seal.

Long Beach Miss Wins Named Miss Nude Galaxy

Each year for a while beauty pageants have been held at Camp Sagamatuma near Ramona. Sagamatuma is a nudist resort.

The winner was named Miss Nude Sagamatuma — what else?

The title is rather restrictive. Sagamatuma covers only a dozen acres with swimming pool and ball grounds.

A similar contest held annually in San Bernardino has a title which carries a title wider in scope. 3 years ago the winner was named Miss Nude California. Then the title became Miss Nude U.S. Last year it was Miss Nude Universe.

Sagamatuma, not to be outdone had its annual pageant Sunday. The winner was a lissome Long Beach lady of 27 who was crowned — are you ready?—Miss Nude Galaxy.

The winner, Bobbi Gallo, whose younger sister and mother are also bonafide nudists, has been practicing nudism for 7 years and has entered a half dozen pageants. This is the first she has won. 14 young ladies, wearing heeled shoes, faced 7 judges, one of which was the KCB chicken. Judging was based on all-over suntan, congeniality, talent, personality, natural appeal, poise and public impact. Whew!

Following the pageant, 4 skydivers, one a girl, dropped from about 2,000 feet to an area between trees and chain-link fences that measured as large as a baseball infield.

The pageant was open to the public and more than 100 persons were in attendance..

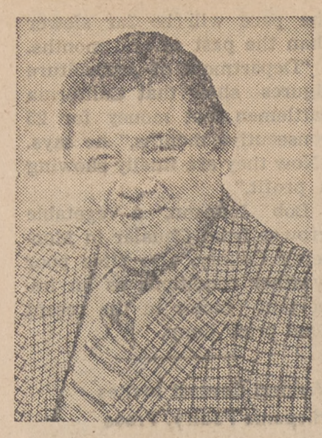
TAKE FIVE



by John E. Wirges

The measure of Tommy Prothro's early football coaching success was an invitation to open the new year in the Rose Bowl. Tommy first took a team there in 1956 when his Oregon State Beavers proved the surprise winners of the Pac-8.

Prothro took the Beavers back again in 1965, then after he returned to UCLA, he made the trip with the Bruins. Pasadena, it seems is Prothro's lucky town. ....

The San Diego Chargers, for whom Tommy Prothro is the resident genius and director of football happenings, open pre-season drills today at UC-San Diego in preparation of the National Football League operations forthcoming this fall.

It is almost semi-reassuring to know that Tommy spent the last few days preparing his mental machinery for the upcoming season playing bridge in Pasadena. If you believe in luck, it is a good omen. If you believe in hard work, it gets underway today.

The Chargers have something like 70 players on their pre-season roster and 50 of the buggers report in for duty this morning. They have just two things to do for the next three weeks. Draw gear and sweat.

Rookies, free agents and recovering veterans pound on Sid Brooks counter for jocks and socks and such today. Remaining veterans are due in camp a week from tomorrow (July 20th).

And that will be a day late for first blood. The Chargers trek up north to UC-Irvine for the first action of the 1978 campaign with their annual scrimmage against the Dallas Cowboys one week from today (July 19th.)

The 16 game regular season starts on Sept. 3rd with Prothro's Pachederms visiting Seattle, but the Chargers get in an early set against the Seahawks with an exhibition season opener on Aug 4th. And that, friends and fellow football followers, ain't but just three weeks and two days away from right NOW.

There will be but few minutes wasted each day as Prothro's thundering herd shake down to fighting size. For months the Charger coaching staff have been working over detailed plans of each practice day's activities.

There'll be steak and eggs and pancakes and all the trimmings when Prothro's Behemoths charge into breakfast each morning at 7:30.

And there'll be sweating and straining and hardnosed training when they hit the practice field in their two-a-day drills designed to separate the men from the boys and other supernumeraries.

The rules in the chow hall are simple and direct. "Take all you want but work everything you take into muscle," is a motto all seem to acknowledge. It ain't written, but it's known.

Charger owner and president Gene Klein has come almost full circle since he plunked down something like $10 million for the club back in 1966. The Chargers were just coming off an AFL Championship season and ground was soon to be broken for the beautiful new stadium that was to go up in Mission Valley. Games were played then in Balboa Stadium.

There have been trials and hardship for the Chargers over the years but Klein never gave up on the city or the team. He tried things that didn't work out, bent his back and came on with another try.

Now things are going good. Tommy Prothro has been directing the talent going into his fifth year and the club has been almost 90 percent rebuilt under his tutelage. Las year the Chargers came home with a .500 mark breaking a seven year losing streak.

This year the Chargers drafted for reserve strength and future stars. When one of Tommy Prothro's ordained "Blue Chippers" was still untapped when the Chargers came to bat, John Larry Jefferson was grabbed quicker than a cold beer on a hot day and regular Larry Dorsey was traded to make room for a rookie starter.

The Chargers say this is the year of Charger Power. From the way things have been going, they may be right. Kleinn, Prothro and the trio of back stage stars of talent development, Johnny Sanders, Tank Younger and Aubrey "Red" Phillips have been busting their humps to build to this year — this team. And it looks like it's ready.

No one is talking about the Super Bowl yet, but . . . why not keep the third weekend in January free, just in case.

Lumberjack Match Tops Coliseum Wrestling Card

Tuesday's professional wrestling card at the Coliseum in downtown San Diego has some oddments.

The first is a Lumberjack match in which pickets are stationed outside the ring to keep the wrestlers inside. Ordinarily, the match is halted when one wrestler gets any part of his body beyond the ropes. The pickets will shove 'em back in. Roddy Piper engages Black Gordman for this one.

Then there's a Mexican Tag Team Death match. That indicates that anything goes. The antagonists are Moondog Mayne and the Great Goliath facing Hector Guererro and The Plowboy. The latter, 6'8" weighs 450 pounds.

In a Scientific bout, Prof Ito meets Carlos Mata.

A plain, standard wrestling match has Gamma Singh grappling with The Great Tonga.

It all starts at 8 p.m. The Coliseum is at 15th and E streets.

Padres-Pirates on Tube

Padre fans can catch another road game televised live on TV 6 Sunday at 10 a.m. when the contest with the Pirates is carried from Three Rivers Stadium in Pittsburgh.

Chargers Summer Camp Opens with 50 Players

The San Diego Chargers Wednesday opened their 1978 training camp at U.C.S.D. with approximately 50 players on coach Tommy Prothro's 71-man roster scheduled to report.

Included in this group are 30 veterans. The remainder of the squad is expected July 20. A scrimmage against the Dallas Cowboys at the University of California at Irvine will be held July 19.

The roster total is the lowest in the 5 years that Prothro has been the Chargers' head coach. Prothro took 100 players to camp in 1974, his first season; 94 in 1975, 104 in 1976, and 78 in 1977.

The Chargers posted a 7-7 record in 1977, their best under Prothro and their best since the team joined the National Football League in 1970. The 1969 squad, a member of the American Football League, had an 8-6 record.

The Chargers open the preseason Friday, August 4, at Seattle and the regular season Sunday, September 3, at Seattle. They have one home game during the preseason, Saturday, August 19, versus the New York Jets.

Among the veterans expected Wednesday is defensive back Ken Reaves, beginning his thirteenth season. Reaves, who has 37 career interceptions, signed as a free agent last week after having played out his option with the St. Louis Cardinals.

The Chargers also have signed these draftees: guard John Choma, No. 5; cornerback Cliff Featherstone, No. 7; defensive tackle Henry Bradley, No. 9A; linebacker Blake Whitlatch, No. 9B, and tight end Charlie Price, No. 9. Wide receiver John Jefferson, No. 1; tackle Milton Hardaway, No. 2, and running back Rickey Anderson, No. 3, signed earlier. Punter Gavin Hedrick, No. 8, and wide receiver Kevin Bell, No. 12, have not signed.

Free agent signers include safety Burl Toler, a University of California graduate whose father is an NFL official; wide receiver Mel Patton, New Mexico State; defensive back Eddie Howard, Sam Houston State; defensive back Lepoleon Ingram, Sacramento State; center Charles Keys, Mississippi State; defensive end David Starkey, Florida, and running back Keith Jackson, Arizona.

Jackson was a second-team all-Eastern League running back at San Diego's Crawford High in 1972.

Prothro's coaching staff includes two changes since the 1977 season: Offensive coordinator Ray Perkins, a former Baltimore Colts wide receiver who had been receivers coach of the New England Patriots since 1974, and wide receivers Pat Hodgson, who last was on the Texas Tech University coaching staff.

Love's Argentine Fight May Lead to Boxing Title

David Love, a San Diego prize fighter, may have a chance at the world middleweight crown sooner than some expect.

Love, under the management of Angelo Dundee, has had scraps in recent months in S. Africa and Paris and conducted himself well. He won 2 battles against S. African champs and lost a close split in Paris earlier this year.

Now rated World 4, he takes off for Buenos Aires on July 27 for a 10-round set-to August 5 against 10th-rated Danoficia Avila of Colombia.

On the same card, scheduled for world teevee, is a 15-rounder in which the World Champion Middleweight Crown holder, Hugo Curro, of Argentina meets World No. 1 challenger Ronnie Harris of Canton, Ohio.

The interesting part of the card is that Dundee almost had a match put together late last year that would have had Love fighting Harris. But no agreeable date could be found.

If Love does the kind of job he is capable of against Avila, he will be a prime prospect for a match against whomsoever is winner of the championship fight August 5.

Love is at full maturity and should be a serious contender. He will reach his 29th birthday on June 30 while he is in Argentina. He is a few years younger than Kenny Norton who also claims 29 as his age.

Padres on Road Again Vs. Cubs, Pirates, Cards

The San Diego Padres will swing back into action after the brief 3-day break for the annual All-Star Game and the immediate schedule calls for the completion of a string of 19 straight appearances on the road.

The Padres, who only recently put the wraps on a 19-game homestand, will begin the traditional second half of the season by returning to competition against clubs from the National League's Eastern Division.

San Diego's road jaunt will feature the surprising Chicago Cubs, the surging Pittsburgh Pirates and lastly the St. Louis Cardinals.

For openers, the Padres will go into Chicago for games with the Cubs today through Saturday. Then, it will be on to Pittsburgh for three games in two days with the Bucs. The two clubs will clash in a Sunday doubleheader and then complete the series with a single game on Monday, July 17.

Putting the wraps on the swing will be three single games against the Cardinals in St. Louis, Tuesday through Thursday, July 18-20.

In the 3 series the Padres will be meeting some interesting opponents based on the way things went in the first half of the campaign.

The Cubs have surprised everyone by first hanging onto the top spot in the National League East for a substantial period of time, and then, staying close when the two-time defending champion Philadelphia Phillies got hot and vaulted past them into first place.

Pittsburgh has also been surprising fans and "experts" alike as the Pirates got off to a bad start and then in the last few weeks have begun to pick up the pieces to the point where they are flirting with an even .500 record and creeping into serious contention for the top position.

As for St. Louis, the Cardinals were tabbed to be one of the stronger clubs in the East this season, but things haven't gone the Redbirds' way. In fact, they even switched managers in mid-stream, going from Vern Rapp to long-time Cardinal favorite Ken Boyer.

The matchup with the Pirates will feature the Padres' final television appearance of the month as the first game of the twin bill will be sent live back to San Diego on TV 6 beginning at 10:05 p.m. Regular announcers Jerry Coleman and Dave Campbell will call the action with Jerry Gross.

Desert Drivers In Off-Road Race

CANOGA PARK—20 of off-road racing's greatest desert stars will compete in the featured Challenge of Champions, highlight of the 6th annual $200,000 BF Goodrich SCORE Off-Road World Championships sponsored by Mark C. Bloome the weekend of August 25-27 at Riverside International Raceway.

The participants in this one-of-a-kind racing spectacular will be selected from among SCORE International's champions during the last two seasons. To be eligible for an invitation a driver must have won, finished second or third in one of SCORE's 1977 or 1978 races, a SCORE-sanctioned event or the Mint 400.

Some of the drivers eligible under these criteria are Rick and Roger Mears, Bobby Ferro, Mickey Thompson, Malcolm Smith, Dr. Bud Feldkamp, Fritz Kroyer, Bob Gordon, defending Challenge of Champions winner Marty Letner and one-time world motocross champion Rolf Tibblin.

The Challenge race will be held August 26, sharing top billing for the weekend speed extravaganza with Sunday's unlimited single-seater main event.

But there will also be competition for four-wheel-drives, motorcycles, passenger cars and trucks—every conceivable type of wheeled vehicle—during the once-yearly event that simulates the thrills and spills of Baja off-road racing.

Drivers and motorcyclists will compete on a man-made 2-mile obstacle course that is laid out so that spectators in Riverside's turn six grandstands can see all the action in comfort. The Esses grandstands also provide an excellent view of the most exciting section of the course, Thompson Ridge.

Ticket pricing is aimed at the family market, according to SCORE officials to encourage fans' use of recreational vehicles to ""camp out" for the entire weekend.

A $10 admission charge Friday and Saturday is good for the entire weekend of racing, includes free overnight parking for vehicles and free admission for children under 12.

Sunday-only tickets are priced at $8.

Thompson Said Driver to Beat At S.B. Speedway

Dean Thompson has become the driver to beat in the California Racing Assn's sprint car ranks and on the strength of his near back-to-back triumphs at Gardena's Ascot Park he might be on the way to a title.

The two wins gave the Carson, Ca, veteran five for the season and he has increased his points margin over defending champion Jimmy Oskie of Downey.

He had another outing in Phoenix before he headed southward and another attempt to master the half-mile dirt oval at South Bay Park's Speedway 117. He'll be joined by many of the other CRA stars in a swift program Saturday night with trials set for 7 p.m. and a trophy dash for 8 p.m.

Thompson, who is especially pleased with the new Bruce Bromme Special, has failed to reach the winner's circle at Speedway 117. He placed second to Steve Howard of Lakewood in the 30-lapper last May and was sixth to winner Oskie last month.

About his car, Thompson said: "Our new Chevy is easier to drive. The old car was designed for an Offenhauser engine and was much narrower. Although I'm only 165 pounds, I had to squeeze into that car. The new Chevy engine has more power and about 100 to 200 pounds lighter."

The program will consist of a three-lap trophy dash, four 10-lap heats and a 12-lap semi-main before the 30-lap feature.

Lealand McSpadden, the flying Arizonan who finished third in the rich Tony Hulman Classic in Indianapolis, informed promoter Don Basile that he hoped to make the show.

Texas Champ Tops Card At Coliseum Fri. Night

He may be one of the most amazing fighters to ever appear at the S.D. Coliseum. It may also be the shortest fight.

Terry Krueger, heavyweight champion of Texas will tangle with Fili Moala whose record is 12-2 with 9 of them being by the knockout route. When Krueger was recently matched with Kama Abbejar of Africa who carried a record of 35-0 having won all of them by knockouts, Krueger disposed of him in 15 seconds. He wants to equal that performance this week.

The Friday headliner is scheduled for 10 rounds.

A semi-main puts Bert Lee, the pride of the Mountain Empire in the ring with Larry Duran of Long Beach for a 6-round welterweight go. Lee, continuing to improve, is likely winner.

Eric Bonilla, of Paradise Hills is carded for 5 rounds in a lightweight scrap against Jose Dominguez of Los Angeles and in another 5 rounder, Micca Tru, nee Mike Hickman, the Surfer of Mission Beach, is scheduled to meet James Weir of Long Beach.

The opening bout is an amateur affair with lightweights Antonio Cardense and Jose Garcia as opponents.

The first bout is at 8:15. The Coliseum is at 15th and E streets in downtown San Diego.

Booklet Tells How To Find Right Job

Does it seem like magic that some people seem so well suited to their jobs? Sometimes it's luck or fate that brings a person to his chosen profession. But, there are times it's important to take a long hard critical look at what your talents and skills are, what you like and dislike, and how this matches up to job requirements.

This takes some in-depth digging and thinking. To give you some help, the Department of Labor has a booklet called "Matching Personal and Job Characteristics". It lists 282 specific occupations and the personal characteristics that link up with each job. For your copy of "Matching Personal and Job Characteristics", send 90 cents to the Consumer Information Center, Dept. 096F, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

For instance, if you're thinking of becoming a bank teller, you'll need a high school diploma. You'll be both helping and working with people. Although your work will be closely supervised, your responsibilities will be all yours, not a team effort. You'll be generally confined to your work area, and will need to be good with detail.

If you're always curious about what's happening around you, and you have a good feel for putting words together, you might be caught up with the idea of being a reporter. In general, this job requires college, although not necessarily a major in journalism. You'll be working with ideas and helping people. You'll have an opportunity for self-expression and will be able to see the physical results of your work. You'll also work as part of a team. Overtime or shift work may be required. Being a reporter will put you at a high level of responsibility, and it will require physical stamina. You'll be working with detail, and your work will be competitive.

When you order a copy of "Matching Personal and Job Characteristics", you'll also receive a copy of the free "Consumer Information Catalog.

Drinking Water Safety Topic of EPA Hearing

A public hearing on drinking water as a potential health problem and on proposed drinking water standards proposed by the U. S. Environmental Protection Agency will mental Protection Agency was held in Washington, D.C.

According to a study presented to the EPA by the National Cancer Institute chemicals in drinking water "present a potential risk of cancer that should be reduced to the extent feasible".

The chemicals which have been shown to cause cancers in animal studies are commonly found in drinking water in small amounts, the study pointed out.

However, cancers induced by exposure to small amounts of chemicals may not be manifested for 20 or more years and are thus difficult to relate to a single specific cause.

"Some portion of the population that is exposed is at greater risk because of other contributing factors such as prior disease states, exposure to other chemicals, or genetic susceptibility," the study said.

In January, the EPA had proposed the first phase of a program to reduce carcinogenic (cancer-causing) chemicals in drinking water. Proposals appeared in the Federal Register on February 9, 1978.

Copies of the National Cancer Institute's position paper are available from the EPA Press Office (A-107), 401 M st., S.W. Washington, D.C. 20460.

Fairgoers Break Attendance Record

659,320 persons were officially counted through the turnstiles in 14 days at the Southern California Exposition at Del Mar to set a new attendance mark.

The previous record of 648,929 was set in 1977.

Half-way through the run of the Expo it appeared attendance would fall below the record.

The final weekend began with attendance down more than 23,000, however, 185,149 visitors turned out the final 3 days to bring the count to 10,391 above 1977.

R. R. Richardson, president of the Expo's board of directors, has indicated that the 1979 Expo dates will be the same as this year's — June 21 through July 4.

Signs Along Freeways To Identify Crops

"What's that growing in that field?"

A question asked by thousands of motorists as they drive along the highways of California. A question often answered incorrectly or not at all.

But now a statewide program has been initiated by the California Farm Bureau Women's Committee to provide answers. The program involves the installation of crop identification signs throughout the state along major roads and highways.

Kathie Merwin of Clarkburg, chairman of the Farm Bureau committee, said the wooden sign project is in response to increased interest in food production by non-farmers.

"Too many people only think of agriculture when they are in the supermarket," Merwin said. "We want consumers to see how their food and fiber is produced. Now they will be able to follow a crop from planting through harvest."

She explained that farm women in 20 counties will erect nearly 300 crop identification signs this year. She predicts more than 800 signs will be up by the end of 1979.

The first 2 by 4-foot sign has been placed in a tomato field off I-5 in Yolo County. The women's committee chose to single out tomatoes because it is the most important crop to Yolo County's economy, representing more than $87 million paid to farmers in 1977.

'KEEP YOUR POWDER DRY' was one slogan that was little help to Dick Padgett, owner of Lemon Grove Appliance, when he tried to fire his antique cannon on the playground at Lemon Grove Junior High School during the recent Lemon Grove First Birthday celebration. Padgett fired the gun last year when Lemon Grove first became a city.

JUST A LITTLE ONE FOR ME? — Even the persuasive abilities of 20-year-old Robin Pullaim, a Lemon Grove Appliance employee, failed to move Dick Padgett's stubborn cannon to fire in honor of Lemon Grove's first birthday. Padgett said vandals had apparently plugged the barrel of the gun, a "swivel" type used to repel boarders on old sailing ships. Padgett reportedly fired the gun finally, hours after photographers had gone home.

Pesticide May Cause Infertility, Cancer

Studies are underway in Ventura County by the State Department of Food and Agriculture in cooperation with several state, county, and federal agencies to determine if the agricultural chemical DBCP can be safely used in California.

The pesticide has been under suspension since last August because it was linked to infertility in males who worked with it, and because of indications that it might cause cancer in laboratory animals.

According to Food and Agriculture Director Richard E. Rominger, the study will help determine what safety measures are necessary before the substance can be re-registered for use here. He said the chemical is the only efficient way to control nematodes, which reduce the productivity of crops such as grapes, citrus, and peaches by attacking their root systems.

In addition to the State Department of Food and Agriculture, the agencies involved in the study include the State Departments of Health and Industrial Relations, the Universities of California at Berkeley and Davis, the Ventura County Agricultural Commissioner's Office, and the Federal Environmental Protection Agency.

The Worker Health and Safety Unit of the Food and Agriculture Department's Pest Management Division is in charge of the study, which includes testing of new application techniques and special protective clothing. As a part of the study, the air in the vicinity of the workers, at the Edge of the test field, and downwind of the site will be continuously monitored during and after application of the chemical.

If the study proves that DBCP can be safely applied, Rominger said, the chemical could be registered for use as early as October.

He stressed that it would be used only under carefully controlled conditions to prevent residues from occurring in the crops and to eliminate, for all practical considerations, exposure of workers and the public to the substance.

Charter Action To Continue

The County Charter Review Committee has moved into the second phase of effort in updating the 45-year-old document.

The first phase involved rewriting the Charter which had complicated legal terms into simplified English.

This being done, the second phase involves proposed substantive changes to the content. This will be recommended to the Board of Supervisors for placement before the voters in the November general election.

Changes proposed to be made by the Committee include a clear separation of the legislative and administrative functions of County government.

The Committee is also proposing that 4 presently elected County officials (Treasurer/ Tax Collector, Assessor, Recorder, and Clerk) be appointed rather than elected upon expiration of the new four-year terms.

Proposed changes also call for the establishment of a modern County personnel system which, (1) would be directed by the County's chief administrative officer; (2) conforms to civil service rules adopted by the Board of Supervisors; and (3) has the Civil Service Commission serve as the administrative appeals body.

The Committee is also proposing that the functions of the Auditor's office be distinguished from those of the Controller. In addition, the Committee is proposing that terms of office for members of the Board of Education be revised and options be provided for hiring the Superintendent of Schools.

Trainer Tire Co. To Open Shop Here

T. W. Trainer, Inc., of Whittier, will build a retail tire outlet at the northeast corner of Broadway and King ave. at the foot of College ave. in Lemon Grove, according to Bob Cushman of Grubb and Ellis Commercial Brokerage Company, who handled all lease arrangements.

Trainer leased 38,159 square feet at the location. The 20-year lease has a total consideration of $415,000. The new store is expected to open in September.

Cushman handled arrangements for the lessee and the lessors, Ron and Linda Greenberg of San Diego.

It is the first time he has ever operated a 7-11 store on a franchisee basis.

C.H.P Capt. C. M. Douglas

Last time Capt. Douglas discussed turn signals.

If you have a question, no matter how insignificant it may appear to you, ask it. It could save your life—or at least save you a citation.

Address your questions to this newspaper, or call us at 469-0101, and allow several weeks for your question to appear.

This week's question:

"What is now happening to traffic enforcement in Lemon Grove since the California Highway Patrol stopped patroling the area after July 1, 1978?"

Capt. Douglas' answer:

Our department has been training San Diego County sheriff's deputies in traffic law enforcement and accident investigation. The deputies have been made aware of critical accident areas and given information on traffic problems in the area.

I feel confident that the sheriff's department will be quite capable of providing the same high level of traffic enforcement that Lemon Grove has experienced in the past from the California Highway Patrol.

The CHP will continue to patrol the freeway through Lemon Grove.

Items Skipable In School Lunches

Junior and middle schools participating in the National School Lunch Program may now, upon approval of their local school food authorities, permit students to take as few as three of the five menu items offered in school lunches.

The purpose of the change is to reduce food waste in the program, the U.S. Department of Agriculture announced. Junior high and middle senior high school students have had the option to choose since June 1976.

The 5 components of the school lunch are bread, milk, meat or meat alternative and two vegetables or fruit.

Students will continue to pay the full amount of lunches even if all five items are not accepted. The amount of federal reimbursement for each lunch served will also not be affected by the change.

Fletcher Named Chairman for 'Duke's' Campaign

Senator George "Duke" Deukmejian, candidate for California Attorney General, has named Kim Fletcher as his campaign chairman in San Diego County.

Fletcher is a long time community leader, active in both civic affairs and politics. As county chairman he coordinates all campaign activities for the Senator in the county.

Deukmejian stressed the importance his county organizations have in his campaign through their mobilization of local support and county-wide fundraising.

The Republican candidate also emphasized that such county organizations, because of their more personal and geographically restricted nature, greatly influence the direction and ultimate success of his campaign.

The county chairman provides leadership and supervision in accomplishing the county group's objectives as well as setting up local committees and possibly representing Deukmejian at meetings throughout the county.

Deukmejian said Fletcher is an important addition to his campaign team and feels with Fletcher's assistance he will carry San Diego County in the November election.
